Logarithmic Properties

Note that for all of the above properties we require that $b > 0$, $b \neq 1$, and $m; n > 0$. Note also that $\log_b 1 = 0$ for any $b \neq 0$ since $b^0 = 1$. In addition, $\log_b b = 1$ since $b^1 = b$. We can apply these properties to simplify logarithmic expressions.

Solving Logarithmic Equations ... How do we decide what is the correct way to solve a logarithmic problem? The key is to look at the problem and decide if the problem contains only logarithms or if the problem has terms without logarithms. ... Otherwise, we must drop that answer(s). $2 \log(5 \times 7)^5 + = 5 \dots$

Worksheet 2 7 Logarithms and Exponentials

$\log x$ always refers to log base 10, i.e., $\log x = \log_{10} x$. $\ln x$ is called the natural logarithm and is used to represent $\log_e x$, where the irrational number $e \approx 2.71828$. Therefore, $\ln x = y$ if and only if $e^y = x$.

Properties of Exponents and Logarithms

$\log_b x = y$ means that $x = b^y$ where $x > 0$, $b > 0$, $b \neq 1$. Think: Raise b to the power of y to obtain x . y is the exponent. The key thing to remember about logarithms is that the logarithm is an exponent! The rules of exponents apply to these and make simplifying logarithms easier. Example: $2 \log_{10} \dots$ PROPERTIES OF LOGARITHMS EXAMPLES 1.

From this we can readily verify such properties as: $\log 10 = \log 2 + \log 5$ and $\log 4 = 2 \log 2$. These are true for either base. In fact, the useful result of $10^3 = 1000$ $10^{24} = 2 \cdot 10$ can be readily seen as $10 \log 10^2 \cdot 3$. The slide rule below is presented in a disassembled state to facilitate cutting.
